Editor's Desk

Renaissance art is a special pictorial supplement that sought to capture the experience of the individual and the beauty and mystery of the natural world.

Renaissance art effected both artist and their patrons with the development of new techniques and new artistic sensibilities.

This special issue will enable students to understand that Renaissance art represents a period of ~~unprecedented~~ unprecedented and unparalleled human energy and mastery in representing, whether in paint or marble, not only the external world and especially the human form, but also in conveying complex philosophical ideas.

When did Renaissance art start?

Characteristics of Renaissance art, notably naturalism, can be found in 13th century European art but did not dominate until the 15th century. Subjects grew from mostly biblical scenes to include portraits. Scholars have traditionally described the turn of the 16th century as the culmination of the Renaissance, when, primarily in Italy, such artists as Michelangelo, Leonardo da Vinci, and Raphael made realistic and complex art. About 1520, the Renaissance gave way to Mannerism, wherein a sense of drama pervaded otherwise realistic art.

"Characteristics of Renaissance art"

Renaissance art is marked by a gradual shift from the abstract forms of the medieval period to the representational forms of the 15th century. Subjects grew mostly from biblical to include portraits, episodes from classical religion, and events from classical as well as contemporary life. Human figures are often ~~rede~~ rendered in dynamic poses, showing expression, using gesture and interacting with one another.

Some of the famous Renaissance artworks

Two of the most famous artworks, in history were painted during the Renaissance: The Mona Lisa (c. 1503-19) and the Last Supper (c. 1495-98), both executed by Leonardo da Vinci, which show an interest not only in representing the human figure realistically but also in imbuing it with character through expression, gesture, and positioning of the body. Other famous artworks include Michelangelo's paintings for the Sistine Chapel (ceiling, 1508-12; The Last Judgment, 1536-41), in which the artist pushed the accurate representation of human anatomy to challenging extremes with complicated elegant poses. Raphael's School of Athens (c. 1508-11) celebrates the intellectual by populating a deep hall, skillfully executed using the recently codified linear perspective, with notable Western thinkers.
